Happy New Year!

Firstly, I would like to wish you all a very happy new year and I hope that 2010 will be a good and peaceful year for you. The New Year has of course been dominated by the extreme weather we have been experiencing and I am sure that it has caused difficulties for all of us. Thankfully most people have been sensible and have been exercising caution, ensuring that the serious incidents are kept to a minimum. Please continue to take good care as you get around in this cold weather and ensure that you allow plenty of extra time for your journey and that you drive according to the conditions.

Crime update.

The weather also seems to have made it more difficult for the criminals to strike with low crime levels being reported over the festive period. Theft of fuel seems to be continuing so please continue to be vigilant and take precautions where possible. There have also been a couple of thefts from garden sheds / gardens so please be aware of how vulnerable your property is and what reasonable steps can be taken to protect it.

New Year's Resolution

Finally, in an effort to keep crime at a low level and to try and prevent yourself becoming a victim of crime, why not make time to set yourself some New Year Resolutions! I suggest the following but make sure yours are relevant for your situation:

1. To ensure that all keys (especially car keys) are put away safely and away from the entrances of my home.
2. To ensure that when the house is not occupied that timers are set for the lights/radio and that good neighbours are informed.
3. To ensure that all bicycles, garden equipment and furniture is properly secured and locked away.
