Community Engagement

In recent reports I have highlighted the rural police team's commitment to holding regular meetings across the rural Test Valley. Both police officers and PCSOs from the Rural Safer Neighbourhoods team are advertising dates and times that they will be attending events in many of the villages to ensure members of the community can have their say about any problems or issues specific to their areas.

Rural officers are attending parish council meetings, NHW meetings, residents' meetings, schools and many types of social village events to ensure the community know exactly who they are and to develop a good understanding of our local communities. Details of these meetings can be found on our own web page within the Hampshire Constabulary web site.

The Independent Advisory Group, as detailed below, is an opportunity for members of the local community to get involved in discussions involving policing and other related matters and we would be very keen for members of the rural community to get involved in this group. If you would like more information then check the website details provided or email iag@hampshire.pnn.police.uk

Kind Regards
PS 3881 Glenn Curtis

Hampshire Constabulary is recruiting members of the community for Independent Advisory Groups (IAGs) to help them develop a better understanding of local communities.

Anyone who does not work for or is linked to the police and who does not have access to the police in a formal role can apply.

You will need to be willing to attend regular meetings to discuss policing and other related issues, seeking fairness and equality for all whatever the subject matter.
